CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION

This book is designed to teach you the basic words, phrases and sentences that you will need for simple everyday communication in France and other French-speaking countries. It does not attempt to teach you the grammatical structure of French, but instead helps you to express your needs and handle problems encountered while traveling.

The value of the book rests as much on what is omitted as on what is included. An effort has been made to include only those phrases pertinent to the needs of the traveler. You will find the phrase "May I have some change" (a frequent need in travel), but do not expect to find a sentence like "This is the pen of my aunt." Furthermore, since the material presented here is not cumulative, as it is in conventional foreign-language courses, you need not start at the beginning. Study whichever phrases will be the most useful to you.

The focus of instruction is on what you will say. However, the section entitled "Making Yourself Understood," which contains such vital phrases as "Please speak more slowly" and "Repeat it, please," will aid you in understanding others.

This book is complete in itself and is meant to be used for reference and study. Read it at odd moments and try to learn ten or fifteen phrases a day. Also, be sure to take it with you when you go abroad. All that you have learned will be available for reference and review.

The book is designed to help you form additional French sentences from the sentences it provides. You can do this by substituting a new word for a given word in a familiar sentence. In sentences where this is possible, the candidate for substitution appears (often in parentheses) following the main entry. For example, "The bags on your left (right) are mine" provides two sentences: "The bags on your left are mine" and "The bags on your right are mine."

Another especially helpful feature is the extensive topic and word index beginning on page 59. Notice that each entry in the book is numbered and that the index refers to these numbers. This enables you to locate information you need quickly, without having to search the entire page.

FRENCH PRONUNCIATION

This book uses a phonetic transcription as an aid to correct pronunciation. (See "Scheme of Pronunciation," below.) It usually appears below the French line in the text.

Nasalization

In French, a vowel is nasalized when it is followed by a single m or n in the same syllable. In our transcription nasalized vowels are rendered:

an, am, em, en	$\overline{\text{ahn}}$
in, im	$\overline{\text{en}}$
on, om	$\overline{\text{awn}}$
um, un	$\overline{\text{uhn}}$

Nasalized vowels are made with the breath passing through both the nose and the mouth. You may find that breaking off the vowel suddenly will make the nasalization easier to imitate. Notice that the m or n is not pronounced after a nasalized vowel.

Silent Final Consonants

In French, a consonant is usually silent at the end of a word. The major exceptions are c, r, f and l, which are usually pronounced at the end of a word. (r is silent, however, in the endings -er and ier.)

Liaison

A usually silent final consonant is often pronounced when the following word begins with a vowel or h. In such cases, the final consonant is linked to the beginning of the second word. For example, the s in des is ordinarily silent, but des olives is pronounced day zaw-leev.

The rules for liaison are complex and the usage is not regular. Study the phonetic transcriptions to get an idea of the word groups that are habitually joined in this manner.

Stress

A French word is most often stressed on the last syllable. However, when the vowel of the last syllable is unstressed e (uh in our transcription), the word is usually stressed on the next-to-last syllable. In addition to stress within a word, the final syllable of a phrase is given added stress.

SCHEME OF PRONUNCIATION

Letters	Tran-scription	Example	Notes
a	a	as in *a*sk, but cut short
	ah	as in f*a*ther
ai	e OR eh	as in m*e*t
au	oh	as in n*o*tify	See note on o below.
b	b	as in *b*oy
c	k	as in s*k*in	Pronounced k before a, o or u. Do not make a puff of air after the k as we do in English.
	s	as in *s*it	Pronounced s before e and i.
ç	s	as in *s*it
d	d	as in *d*ay	Formed by touching the tongue tip to the teeth, not to the gum ridge behind the teeth as we do in English.
e, è, ê	e OR eh	as in m*e*t
é	ay	as in d*ay*, but cut short	Pronounce ay as a single pure sound, not a diphthong; do not slide over into an ee sound as we do in English.

Letters	Transcription	Example	Notes
e, eu, œu	uh	as in German können (short) or Goethe (long)	No exact equivalent in English. Round the lips to say oh, and without changing the position of the lips say eh.
f	f	as in *f*ather
g	g, gh	as in *g*o	Before a, o and u.
	zh	as in a*z*ure	Before e and i.
gn	ny	as in ca*ny*on	Pronounced as a single sound.
h	—	—	Always silent in French.
i	ee	as in m*ee*t	Pronounce ee as a single pure sound, not a diphthong; do not slide over into a y sound as we do in English.
j	zh	as in a*z*ure
k	k	as in s*k*in	Do not make a puff of air after the k as we do in English.

n	n	as in *n*ote
o	aw	as in l*aw*, but cut short
	oh	as in n*o*tify	Pronounce oh as a single pure vowel, not a diphthong; do not slide over into an oo sound as we do in English.
oi	wa	as in *wa*nt
ou	oo	as in f*oo*d
p	p	as in s*p*in	Do not make a puff of air after the p as we do in English.
ph	f	as in *f*ather

Letters	Transcription	Example	Notes
q	k	as in *sk*in	See note on k above.
r	r	as in *r*ed	May be rolled with the tip of the tongue as in Italian or Spanish. The Parisian r, which resembles the sound of gargling, is produced by vibration of the uvula (the fleshy lobe that hangs in the back of the mouth).
s	s OR ss	as in *s*it	Pronounced s at the beginning of a word and when doubled.
	z	as in *z*eal	Pronounced z between vowels.
t	t	as in s*t*ing	Formed by touching the tongue tip to the teeth, not to the gum ridge behind the teeth. Do not make a puff of air after the t as we do in English.
th	t	as in s*t*ing	See note on t above. Never pronounced like the th in English *th*is or *th*in.
u	ew	as in German *ü*ber	No exact equivalent in English. Round the lips to say oo, and without changing the position of the lips say ee.
v	v	as in *v*ase
w	v	as in *v*ase
	w	as in *w*ent
x	ks	as in pic*ks*
y	ee	as in m*ee*t	See note on i above.

The sentences, words and phrases in this book are numbered consecutively from 1 to 751. All entries in this book refer to these numbers. In addition, each major section heading (CAPITALIZED) is indexed according to page number (boldface). Parts of speech are indicated by the following italic abbreviations: adj. for adjective, adv. for adverb, n. for noun and v. for verb. Parentheses are used for explanations.

Because of the large volume of material indexed, cross-indexing has generally been avoided. Phrases or groups of words will usually be found under only one of their components, e.g., "bathing suit" appears only under "bathing," even though there is a separate entry for "suit" alone. If you do not find a phrase under one word, try another.

EASY FRENCH PHRASE BOOK

Over 750 Basic Phrases for Everyday Use

Here's the perfect book to use when you're traveling to France, Belgium and other French-speaking areas for business or pleasure—or whenever fast, effective communication in French is needed.

This handy, sturdily produced volume contains over 750 basic phrases that provide the practical language necessary for most everyday situations. Designed for use as a quick reference tool and easy study, Easy French Phrase Book is the perfect companion when traveling abroad or for reading at odd moments in order to learn a few phrases each day.

Included are basic phrases used in:

- ★ making yourself understood
- ★ general expressions
- ★ restaurants and specialty shops
- ★ phone conversations
- ★ boat, plane and train travel
- ★ making hotel reservations

. . . and much more.

Each phrase in this inexpensive, easy-to-use book is accompanied by a phonetic pronunciation guide, while a complete index makes word and phrase location quick and easy.
